

The Cambridge Undergraduate Journal of Development Economics

Are you an undergraduate interested in development economics?
Do you want to get published?

The Cambridge Undergraduate Journal of Development Economics is looking for papers!

PIXEL is a student run journal committed to promoting research and writing by undergraduate students around the world in the field of development economics and is looking for papers, essays and articles on topics in the field of economic development. Papers and essays written for classes, honours theses, based on fieldwork experience or written independently are welcome.

Deadline for the 2012 issue is September 1st

For more information see www.pixelthejournal.com

Send work and questions to pixelthejournal@gmail.com